

Dear Sirs,

Media is very important in bringing information to citizens. It is also important in helping create a unity among people across 3000 miles. Both of these are necessary to maintain a vibrant democracy. But to maintain a vibrant democracy it is also important that we have space, opportunity, and resources to have debates, discussions, and disagreements.

If there is no diversity in ownership of media resources, there will be no opportunity for minority perspectives which may--in time--become new majority perspectives. It is important that we maintain restrictions on monopoly ownership of the media resources. Please do not loosen the restrictions now in place.

Thank you,
Rachel Kahn-Hut
